Part One

Your child will regularly be uploading work to his or her GO Portfolio, and this work will remain his or her own property, but will be visible to fellow students, their parents and teachers. As Gifted Online contributes to a growing understanding of the best online teaching practices for gifted children, we sometimes have the opportunity to present students' work at national and international conferences and teacher education events, or to publish in paper or online teacher education journals. Proceedings from conferences are sometimes made available to the general public via the internet after the conference finishes.

Are you happy for your child's work to be shared in journals, at conferences, or at other teacher education events?

Gifted Online is a service that we must advertise so that people who need us can find us. Most of this advertising is directed towards schools, but sometimes we attend parents' events or trade shows connected with education and parenting. Opportunities arise from time to time to be interviewed by the media or to publish in magazines. Copies of our e-mail newsletters are sometimes also used in a promotional capacity.

Are you happy for your child's work to be used in promoting Gifted Online, and in GO e-mail newsletters?

Part Four

There are two different rates at which GO students are charged. GO Solo and GO Home students pay a higher rate, and if necessary their families can apply to The Gifted Education Centre for a fees subsidy. We have done everything possible to cut the costs for GO teams, where students receive most of their support and feedback from a teacher at their own school. We are therefore unable to include these students in our regular subsidy scheme. However, if you have a child in a GO team, you now have the opportunity to make a donation to subsidise another child at your school, to allow them to join your GO Team. This money will be kept aside for a student from your school for two years. After that time, if it has not been required, it will be made available to any GO Team student throughout the country.

I am a GO Team parent.
